

Left picture is fire truck tanker water after sitting in truck, this is current water sent to homes after chemical addition that is oxidized.

Right picture is of a fire hydrant in the distribution system when being turned on.

Pictures above are from fire hydrants when they were in operation. Shows the iron in the system.

Picture above shows the water that is pumped from the Jordan aquifer without having the iron and manganese oxidized.