

YSP:

Karna will be talking with Sara Hanson tomorrow to see how we can get started up again with YSP. It seems very difficult. Some of the older students have been working with her individually outside of her studio in Minneapolis. I am not directing that experience but they have been doing some preliminary work for the rest of the group. It is unknown when the group can begin to work together again.

Building the Brand:

As far as Building the Brand, the committee's intention is to connect with Sam Temple to see what their mission is with Northfield television and promoting the city. We think we need to do some brainstorming to see how he could collaborate to help build brand in Northfield by showcasing the arts . This is a challenging conversation to have when it is nearly impossible to host performances or gallery receptions with audiences, but we certainly could do some brainstorming for the future regarding story sharing that highlights the arts.
